Harrison's Cohorts Arrive at Minneapolis.

March on the Blaine Men.

A Great Gathering of Republican Leaders at Chicago.

-The California Delegates on Their Way to the Convention-Other Political Doings.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1 .- [By the Asso ciatd Press.] The advance guard of convention workers came in this afternoon and Harrison parlors were opened at the West Hotel. The arrivals this afternoon were Harrison men of the nost enthusiastic kind, and all came from Indiana. The early opening of Harrison headquarters was a surprise to the Blaine men, who expected to be first when they came in with the National Committee tomorrow. In short, the President's friends have stolen a march on the Blaine boomers and the sudden arrival means fight from the start to the finish. It is said that their unannounced arrival and the quick opening of headquarters were made on telegraphic instructions from Washington, and the men sent here and to come tomorrow are the same ones who did so much for Harrison's nomina-tion in 1888. Gen. Michener and John

C. New will be in command. R. R. Shiel, who was with the ar-rivals, said it was certainly bad taste for Quay, Platt and Foraker, whose judgments are not backed by the records, to attempt to dictate who the Presidential nominee shall be. The Blaine sentiment, he said, is not so strong as is believed. It is more properly an anti-Harrison sentiment and the leaders are willing to units. leaders are willing to unite upon any one to defeat Harrison. Shiel further "There is no shadow of a doub said: that Harrison will be renominated. We have the delegates with whom to do it and it is foolishness to talk of any serious opposition to the President."

THE TALK AT CHICAGO.

Press.] Republican politicians were plenty at the hotels this morning. Conferences among the leaders were con-stantly held. Emmons Blaine, after a conference with Clarkson, Conger and others, declared that he knew nothing regardings his father's intentions though he admitted Blaine's silence seemed to mean a good deal. Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota has advices from five of the six delegates from his State that they are for Blaine and all but two of the South Dakota delegation, who were instructed for Harrison, have gone over to Blaine.

Members of the National Executive Members of the National Executive Committee left for Milwaukee this afternoon. They will be banqueted to-night by Henry C. Payne and will proceed to Minneapolis tomorrow. The matter will not be definitely settled until Saturday, when the committee will meet in Minneapolis, but it now seems that Hon. Thomas B. Reed of Maine will be temporary chairman.

The friends of Harrison were booming him as well as claiming various delegations and le aders for him, among others Gov. McKinley of Ohio.

DEPEW FOR HARRISON.

Speaking of the possibility of Blaine being a candidate, he said: "Harrison is almost certain to be the nominee of the convention, but in case Blaine is nomi nated and refused, then Harrison not be a candidate for an office decl by the chief officer of his Cabinet. lemoralization of such an event would spread all over the country and the party would be defeated before the election. The inevitable and irrepressible logic of the situation is the nominanation of Harrison. The only chance to beat Harrison is that the convention should yote for half a deep favorite should vote for half a dozen favorite sons and prevent the choice until his opponents can concentrate on somebody. The supreme effort to induce Blaine to become a candidate has practically retired everybody but him, so that unless Blaine allows his name to be presented Harrison will be nominated by the po-Harrison will be nominated by the po-tential force of his record and friends and by default of the defendant."

and by default of the defendant."

He said that nothing could be more suggestive of the difficulties of the situation to the opponents of Harrison than the spectacle of practical politicians like Platt, Quay, Clarkson and others flirting with the ghost of Cæsar and the coffin of Mahomet.

"The talk that there is any disrespec for President Harrison is unfounded. The sentiment of New York is over-whelmingly for Blaine, as it is also in Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois and the North-any other man. Expressing my own choice, I think we ought to have a colored Republican either as temporary or permanent chairman."

Mississippi River there is almost an unanimous demand for Blaine if he can be had.

CLARKSON WANTS BLAINE. Chairman Clarkson, of the Nationa Republican Committee, before leaving for Minneapolis tonight, said that the result of the conventions in different result of the conventions in different States was to give the President 290 instructed votes. This left over 600 uninstructed and unpledged delegates. "In my opinion," said he, "the reason for this action is that in the North there is still generally cherished the party hope that Blaine might be secured as a candidate. The question-now to be set-tled by Republicans is whether Harrison is better entitled to two terms than Blaine is to one. The movement toward Blaine is that of the masses. I have an Blaine is that of the masses. I have an equally kind feeling for both, yet I prefer some other man than either, but it is not a question of personal preference this year, but party necessity. We shall need our strongest man to win. It seems to be the opinion of a strong majority of Republicans in the doubtful States that Blaine is the strongest leader of the party. It is going to be a good-natured contest, and I hope to see whoever will be chosen selected by acclamation.

The sentiment of New York is over-whelmingly for Blaine, as it is also in Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois and the North-west; while in the country west of the arranges the details of the coalition as ably acquirted.

SCIENCE IN THE PARLOR The pleasant pariors of William A. Spalding, of The Times, presented an animated appearance on Tuesday eventhe various methods of producing elec-trical manifestations. Beginning with a piece of amber, called by the ancient Greeks "electron" he excited it by friction so that it would attract bits of What the Santa Fe Will Do at Santa Monica.

Lively Competition Expected in the Seashore Business.

The Southern Pacific Finds a New Harbor Site.

Progress Made by the Consolidated Elec tric Railway-Electricity for the Cable Company's Horse Cars

Officers of the Southern California road expect to put a train service of the new Santa Monica line on the 12th At first this service will limited to about two trains each way daily, but more trains will be put on later. It is thought that the formal opening of the road will occur on the 19th instant, when Santa Monica citizens will appropriately celebrate the occasion which will mark their connecoccasion which will mark their connection with the outside world by a second transcontinental road. With the opening of the new line the passenger department of the road will inaugurate a new feature, which will be popular. Tickets will be sold permitting passengers to go to Redondo, pass a portion of the day there and then go to Santa Monica for a few hours before returning to Los Anveles the evening of the same to Los Angeles the evening of the same day. The privilege of making the trip including both resorts will be granted on payment of 25 cents more than the rate to one place alone, or 75 cents. The company will provide good picnic grounds at South Santa Monica, where the road runs beside a pretty grove and an ostrich farm within a stone's throw of the beach. It is expected to catch a large portion of the summer travel for the new line this season. to Los Angeles the evening of the sam THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC AT SANTA MONICA

The intention of the Southern Pacific Company regarding the wharf matter at Santa Monica have been definitely learned. The fact that the ocean bottom at Santa Monica Cañon is too stony to permit the driving of piles for the breakwater and wharf alluded to in this paper yesterday, has been decisively determined. Off the mouth of the cañon, at the site selected for the wharf, the ocean bottom is covered with huge boulders, which, at some fargone time, have been washed into the sea. To avoid the obstacles which these boulders prove to be in the construction of the big breakwater a more favorable site has been selected about two miles up the beach, where another effort will be made. Right-of-way to the new site has been secured, and the track will be immediately extended thither. Thus, by "easy stages," the Southern Pacific line is creeping up along the Coast to-ward Huepeme and Santa Barbara, the ultimate objective point. SCRAP HEAP.

The Santa Fé the other day filed a chattel mortgage in Shawnee county, Kan., on a portion of its rolling stock to secure the payment of $2,500,000. It is understood that Receiver Crank, of the cable road, has made arrangements for changing all the horse car lines of his company to the electric system, and all the horses will soon be emancipated.

Rumors are again current that the Consolidated Electric Railway Company will acquire the little dummy road known as the Cahuenga Valley. There is very little ground for the revival of the rumor at this time.

Workmen in the employ of the Consolidated Electric Railway are now engaged in putting into place the crossings needed at the intersection of Second and Main streets. While this is in progress the Second-street horse cars for the Arcade depot start from Main

FLOWER FESTIVAL SOCIETY:

The Annual Meeting Held at the Home Yesterday Affernoon, In response to a general call the members of the Flower Festival Society met in the parlors of the home yesterday afternoon for the annual meeting. After devotional exercises, conducted by the president, Mrs. A. L. Flint, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The reports were then read, the first in order being that of the recording secretary, Miss Ida B. Lindley. This eport showed what had been d during the year, and gave a detailed statement of the work of the society, briefly outlining the good work which has been performed, the principal item being the fact that good board and room has been furnished for $3.50 per week, thereby enabling many young women to enjoy the comforts of a home, when otherwise it would have been impossible for them to do so.

r them to do so. Next in order was the financial secretary's report, read by Mrs. J. S. Slauson, the financial secretary, whose excellent management and persistent efforts have enabled the home to pass through the general financial stress and keep out of debt without appealing to the public for aid, is deserving of the highest credit. A financial statement to the public for aid, is deserving of the highest credit. A financial statement was also submitted, showing that the society had on hand at the beginning of the year $251.66, and received during the year $3726.93, making a total of $3978.59. Expenditures during 'the same period were $3976.59. There is a balance of $2 in bank and $21.87 in a balance of $2 in bank and $21.87 in the matron's hands, which makes the net surplus for the year $28.37. The report of the Admission Committee was next read, showing that 115 young women have been admitted to the home during the year, an average run-ning close to ten a month. The president's report was then read, after which all the reports were unani-

FRIGHTFUL DEPRAVITY.

Men who Make a Practice of Ruining Mere Children In the examination of Edna Percival, the fifteen-year-old girl, yesterday committed to the Whittler Reform school by Judge Smith, a frightful state of depravity was developed. The Percival by Judge Smith, a frightful state of de-pravity was developed. The Percival girl, with a companion named Mand Stone, two or three years younger than herself, visited a disreputable resort kept by old "Mother Brown" on the cutskirts of the city on the East Side, in company with two men, "Billy" McDermott, a Spring street livery stable keeper, and Dolph Green, a hack driver. Here one of the men attempted to ruin the Stone girl, when both she and Edna Percival made their escape and returned to the city. The escape and returned to the city escape and returned to the city. Second Day's Session of the Southern California Association.

Resolution Adopted Against the Use of Wine at the Communion Table-Report of the Committee on Missions-Routine Business.

Yesterday was the second day of the sixth annual session of the General Congregational Association for Southern California, now sitting in East Los An-geles. The number of delegates was considerably increased over that re-ported yesterday, there being in all 108 names recorded in the register of delegates and visitors.

The meeting was called to order at 9 2.m. by the moderator, Rev. E. P. Abbott, and Rev. Bristol occupied the time until 9:30 o'clock with a very interesting discourse upon the Holy Spirit Spirit.

Dr. J. H. Warren, a member of the association in the north part of the State, made some encouraging remarks and presented the greetings of the sis-ter organization.

Dr. Harwood presented the report of the Committee on Temperance, showing the growth and progress of public sentiment in favor of the movement. The report was discussed at some length and several changes made in the wording. The following resolutions

Resolved, that we advise against the use of alcoholice wine at the communion table.
Resolved, also, that while we look upon the church of Christ as the great temperance organization, we extend our hearty good will and God speed to every organization that is laboring with us to destroy forever the saloon and the saloon power.

higher criticism was then taken The higher criticism was then taken up and fully discussed by Rev. Abbott and Prof. F. W. Phelps. The speakers were quite in harmony in their ideas and expressed the opinion that all criticism, so long as it be honest, was healthy in its effect upon the church and upon society. While not indorsing the ideas set forth in this so-called higher criticism, both speakers felt satisfied that in the end it would be productive of good, in that it would go satisfied that in the end it would be productive of good, in that it would go to further establish the worth of what is true and good in the old doctrines and at the same time by reason of its own investigative spirit cause its own errors of logic and premise to be exposed and the arguments based upon them to fall to the ground.

After dinner, which was served in the gymnasium, the meeting reconvened at p.m., the subject first considered being the work of the Woman's Home Missionary Union. This portion of the exercises was presided over by Mrs. E. Cash, president of the union, and a number of interesting addresses and reports by the ladies of the organization wars listened to attentions.

Pomona College came in for its share of the general interest, addresses being made by President C. G. Baldwin, Rev. E. D. Weage, of the Committee on Education, and others.

At 4 o'clock Rev. W. N. Bun addressed the association upon "The State of Religion in the Churches." At the close of his remarks, a community

The Committee to at Once Apply for the Necessary Space-Notice from the Superintendent of the Vitlcultural Department.

The regular monthly meeting of the Southern California World's Fair Association Executive Committee was held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with Warren C. Kimball in the chair and Frank Wiggins acting as secretary. Other members present were Messis Wells, Jones, Kraft, Fish and Bundy.

Among the reports of the standing committees Mr. Jones, chairman of the Tree Committee, reported that the list of trees sent to the State Commission to form California's outdoor exhibit comprises from San Diego county 1890 trees, shrubs, plants and flowers; San Bernardino county, 68 trees, and Los Angeles county 990 trees, shrubs and flowers. San Diego proposes sending in her collection a date palm 100 years

The special committee on canned goods reported that it had ordered 141 dozen fruit jars and that San Diego and Ventura each had sent in an order for one-sixth of this amount. The committee was instructed to order such jars for domestic canning as each county

The balance of the standing commit tees reported progress. The commit-tee to whom was referred the matter of tee to whom was referred the matter of preparing a certificate of honorary membership to the Southern California World's Fair Association reported that the Los Angeles Lithograph Company had made she lowest bid, and that the plan submitted would be acceptable with a few alterations. Resolved, That in making a district exhibit, as provided for in resolutions adopted at the meeting of this executive board held May 4, 1892, it shall be distinctly understood that each of the six counties may be granted space within the space alloted to the district, commensurate with the magnitude and importance of the exhibit, which said county proposes to make, and within this space may make a county display, subject only to regulations necessary for the general good. the general good.

The matter of applying for space in the department building was then discussed. As very few applications had been received from individuals, it was thought expedient for this association to make application in each department for space that could be filled from each of the six counties, and, in order to determine how much space should be applied for, the chair appointed a committee of five, consisting of Messrs.

Washington Has Imported the Rotten Roy Fad from London and Now the Swells of Society "Show Themselves" on the White Lot Drive-Plebelans Not Interested.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The American capital is in its glory. There is no season in Washington like the gentle spring. Nowhere else is the air so bulmy, the foliage to bright, the fun so fast. In winter Washington is wet and sloppy. In midsummer it is as hot as Tophet. In the autumn it haves it a long time to get copied off. This spring is in some respects a noteworthy one, even in this city of the spring. It has been marked by an ambitious effort to establish in Washington a Rotten Row. Perhaps you, my dear reader, don't know just what a Rotten Row is Neither do I, for I have never been in London. But I am told it is a famous drive, a which English poblility and aristocracy. don. But I am told it is a famous drive, on which English nobility and aristocracy, whether noble or not, disports itself in splendor and magnifleence on fine afternoons, though I doubt if they have such things as fine afternoons in London. The attempt to establish a Rotten Row in Washington has not met with success. In fact, ington-has not met with success. In fact, it is a dismal, almost a comical, failure, and I am heartily glad of it. But before telling, you why I am glad let me endeavor to describe to you what this imitation Rotten Row is or was intended to be.

It is government property, but has been put to no other use than as a public driveway—a track, which describes a circle and measures about one-half mile around, being its chief feature. It is known as the White Lot, and here visiting military companies and secret societies have their encampments or parades. It feally is a chapming anot not so much in itself as in charming spot, not so much in itself as in tastriang spot, not so much in itself as in its surroundings. In one corner are the White House stables. In one corner are the white House states. Thus surrounded, it may easily be imagined that the White Lot, with its splendid half mile track, is a favorite drive. "Since this project failed," argued Mrs. Berdan, "why shall we not establish a new driving ground to which all the fine equipages of Washington will drift on certain days, and where wealth and aristocracy may disport themselves to their heart's content? If this were all the Rotten Row would have been yoted a success. But in gowns. If this were all the Rotten now would have been voted a success. assembled, evidently with the manicous purpose of seeing swelldom swell, and since there was no law and no police regulations against it to participate in the grand pro-cession. The appearance of these unbid-den guests naturally detracted from the cago, who has been visiting her.

M. Perrott, editor of the Waterloo

These interlopers, to make matters worse, exhibited a tendency to guy the whole proceeding. The whole affair was so characteristic of Washington society, where the rich and the poor mix together, and the pretentious are compelled to rub shoulders with the humble and lowly, that the town has had a good laugh at the expense of the aristocrats of Rotten Row. The commissioners were sorry, but could do nothing for them. Then appeal was taken to President Harrison. So there the matter was

A few days, later the leaders of the Rotten How movement concluded to try it again. This time they did not advertise the parade day in the newspapers, and the common level knew nothing about it. But the word having passed in aristocratic circles there was a goodly gathering of thesewell people. Unfortunately there were among them some more unbidden guests of a different sort. Several wild and woolly western statesmen were there, driving western statesmen were there, driving of a different sort. Several wild and woolly western statesmen were there, driving trotting horses to sulkies, under the mistaken idea that it was a sort of country horse fair. One senator, who drives a pair of fast roadsters, was out in a light wagon and an old slouch hat, both the wagon and the hat being pretty well covered with mud. He insisted upon trying to get up recess with all the scoole he ered with mud. He insisted upon trying to get up races with all the people he passed, instead of going along in the dig-nified and sedate fashion affected by the real aristocrats. He also yelled out "how-de?" to his acquaintances, many of whom were severely shocked. Another senator came out in a buggy with red whels, wearing on his head a dusty old straw hat came out in a buggy with red wheels, wearing on his head a dusty old straw hat which filled the souls of the aristocrats with disgust. There were a number of rented rigs in the lot too. The rented rig is all right for utilitarian purposes, and will do to run about to receptions and dinners in, but it will never do for Rotten Row.

The worst of it all was that the public wouldn't come out to see. The projectors of the enterprise had hoped the common people would be there by the thousand to gaze in open mouthed wonder at the magnificent spectacle, to applaud and to envy But the public wasn't there and didn't ap pear to care a rap whether aristocracy had a Rotton Row or any other sort of a row in Washington, all of which goes to show that the so called aristocracy of America is having some difficulty in establishing itself as an institution. We don't object to aristocrats. We like fine horses and itself as an institution. We don't object to aristocrats. We like fine horses and handsome carriages, and when we see them in the ordinary routine of life are willing to accord them due appreciation and admiration, but a set parade of equipages, a show day and show place appointed for the purpose of swelling, admiring and being purpose of swelling, admiring and being admired, strikes, the average American citizen as being in about as good taste as would a diamond night at the theater, on which all fortunate possessors of jewels were invited to display them in a sort of competitive examination. Therefore am I glad that the Rotton Row project has me:

It is difficult to keep a quorum in the house or senate these fine days. There are races and bull games, beautiful cool drives in the country, and, better than all, refreshing excursions on the Potomac. Just now it is the planked shad which seduces many statemen away from their labors many statesmen away from their labors and often leaves the house looking as empty as a haymow after a long, hard winter. Marshall Hall is the home of the planked shad. It is about twelve miles down the Potomac, opposite Mount Ver-non, and was for many years the home of Chief Justice Marshall. The old mansion Chief Justice Marshall. The old mansion is as picturesque as anything that can be found in all Virginia or Maryland, and the grounds are delightfully situated on the banks of the river and rich in shade, in flowers, plants and walks. But the shad is king of Marshall Hall. Every Sunday the capital—senators, representatives, cabinet officers, officials of all grades and sorts—sail down the river with their and sorts-sail down the river with mouths yearning for the planked shad which Colonel McKibben has in readiness which Colonel McKiloben has in readiness for them. Baking a shad on a plank before an open fire outdoors is an art of which there are few masters; but Colonel McKiloben is one of them. This old forty-niner has for a partner Captain Blake, and the forty along the partner captain Blake, and other forty-niner, and perhaps there are no two men in Washington who enjoy no two men in Washington who enjoy greater popularity. Ratherodd, it strikes me, that two adventurous spirits who went to the gold fields to seek their fortune a third of a century ago should now be found here within the shadow of the Capitol finding fortune by running a steamboat to the Marshall home and there which wasted shad to the government.

Our artist gives you a sketch of them presiding over one of their own inimitable outdoor shad feasts. Go down there any Sunday and you will find them surrounded by statemen judges, men ambitious of by statesmen, judges, men ambitious of the presidency, department clerks, even common newspaper men. The planked shad is a great leveler of rank. Within a work or a pre-shall see at Marshall Hall shad is a great leveler of rank. Within a week or so we shall see at Marshall Hall the supreme court of the United States and the judges of all the other courts in Washington, eating shad and drinking ale under the branches of Chief Justice Marshall's homestead trees. Every year, in early May, they meet there with all the lawyers of the capital, and the occasion is one of the most pleasant incidents of the spring season in Washington.

A MEMBER of the New Orleans city government has introduced an ordi nance repealing the license hitherto granted for prize-fighting. If the decent people of that city want to add a crown of glory to the good record they made against gambling they have only to assert their influence and stop prize fighting. The sacrifice of any supposed advantage from the forthcoming Sullivan-Corbett prize-fight would be nothing compared to the gain in the cause of decency and humanity and the repu tation of the city. It is time that concerted movements against prize-fight ing were organized all along the line.

The City Funding Bonds.

It is evident that the City Council, at its meeting of May 24, acted with undue haste in awarding to R. G. Lunt the sale of the $320,000 funding bonds at a commission of 2 per cent. (reaching a total of over $6400,) for reason, first, that the charter provides that no bonds of the city should be sold for less than par; second, because no sufficient opportunity was given for competitive bids; and, third, because after the first advertisement, the bond were changed so as to make the inter-WEEKLY MIRROR (12 pages) will be sent by us to any address in the United States for est payable semi-annually instead of annually and the principal payable in gold coin-thus clearly enhancing the value of the bonds by from 3 to 5 per cent. 5 months-from June to November-and After these changes and the first award had been made, the Farmer's and Merchant's Bank came forward with an offer to take $100,000 of the bonds at par, Manager Hellman explaining per sonally to the Council that the changes above noted had put a different phase out the Presidential campaign and for seven upon the transaction, and enabled him to make the higher offer. It is claimed by a certain Washington correspondent that the friends of President Harrison are preparing to make a bitter war on Blaine. They not only allege treachery against Blaine, but they also claim that his administra tion of the State Department has been a failure. They say he has been traveling all the time under false pretenses, and that, if he persists in standing as a candidate, they will expose him to the country. We can hardly believe that the friends of Harrison would be so short-sighted and foolish. Such twaddle would not be believed by anybody. The managers by some well-directed efforts might have made the country believe at one time that Blaine was a sick man, but they could never inculcate the idea that he has been, or is today, a weak man inintellect or administrative ability. As to "exposures," let them fire away. Such a course would hurt Harrison far worse than Blaine, and might supply the crest to the tidal wave which is setting in for the man from Maine.

Mr. Sherman held that this would involve violation of specific contracts requiring gold payments, and he objected o the consideration of the bill.

The yeas and nays called on consider ation, resulted: Yeas, 25; nays, 12 no quorum, and a call was ordered.

Messrs. Hill and Hunton, of Virginia the new Senator, voted in the affirma tive. The call showed the impossibility of securing a quorum without breaking pairs, so the bill was passed over with out prejudice, and the Senate resumed consideration of the calendar.

The Flurry in Corn Ended.
CHICAGO, June 1.—The failure yesterday and consequent excitement in the corn market was quickly forgotten and the principal feature of the market to-day was the weather. One hundred stations all over the corn belt reported severe rains last night and the outlook for farmers is discouraging. The market opened with a decided bulge of 1 cent or more and then settled steady at 1% cents over yesterday's close, but quickly sold off, losing about half the early advance.

When a Lady Starts out on a shopping expedition she has a great many things to consider; she has a certain amount of money to invest and a certain number of articles to purchase—the money must meet the demands. If the lady steps into this house she is shown goods freely; there is no hesitating in this particular—every attention is paid her; there is no slackness on the part of any one; it is the attention she wants and it is attention she gets. The lady is more liable to go home feeling satisfied with her purchases than if no particular attention was paid to her by any one. and she had to shop all over the city to find what she wanted. If proper attention had been paid the lady the first house she went into would have sold her all the goods she required and her day's work would have been comparatively easy; the salespeople would have been more highly appreciated by her and by the employer. It is a pity to spoil a good wood-sawer and place him behind the counter to wait upon trade because you can get him cheap-good salespeople are the cheapest. It is better to pay good wages and get the best help, who know how to wait upon trade. We make the point: The best is none too good; the very best help is the cheapest. The Latest Novelties.

None but a first-class house can keep the latest novelties in footwear, and only the largest manufacturers can afford to make them. As it costs about $1,500 to get up a new last, only a progressive manufacturer and one who keeps AHEAD of the times can afford it. Slow, behind-the-time houses will not order novelties, fearing that they may not "take" with the public and that a stock of them may be left on their hands.

Our policy is to be leaders in all the latest designs. Our customers can depend upon being strictly "in it" by getting their shoes from us. We have this year many new shapes not shown by other houses.

Really fine goods never find their way to auction houses or broker establishments, as every pair the manufacturers sell are made up upon orders given them months ahead. If through some error or by bad workmanship goods happen to be injured and are refused by the dealer on account of the imperfection, they are sent to an auction house or broker to be disposed of; and this is the only way the small concern can get them at "reduced prices," and they are then palmed off on transient trade as the best.

No house that intends to continue in business can afford to handle any but the very best goods that can be bought. It must be remembered that there is nothing worn that has to stand the hard usage that footwear does, and when you combine fineness with durability the materials must be of the very best.

We want to impress upon you the fact that we carry only the best goods in their respective lines that money will buy, and that we make it a point to give you style and a perfect fit at the same price that others give you ill-shaped, shoddy shoes for. Our customers are sure of the best, the finest, the latest and the most stylish goods in the market.

circles, unfavorable to President Harrison, has been excited by references in recent conventions in this State to the speech delivered at this place in 1872 by W. H. H. Miller, Harrison's former law partner and now Attorney-General in his Cabinet. In that speech Miller attacked and harshly criticised Gen. Grant, a fact which was notorious when Harrison selected him as one of his official advisers. The following are extracts from the speech: The first trial of the coming President is the selection of his Cabinet. What a reve-lation did this make of Gen. Grant! Eillhu B. Washburne, a second-rate Congressman from Illinois, had not the first qualification from Illinois, had not the first chalification for Secretary of State. He knew no more of the foreign relations of the Government than Tecumseh knew of Greek history. He had procured Grant's appointment in the army in 1661, and Grant appointed him Secretary of State. A. T. Stewart had been very generous to Grant, subscribing largely to funds raised for his benefit. Neither Grant nor his father had seen any impropriety in speculating in cotton permits during the war, so now the President saw no reason why Mr. Stewart's interest should embarass the expression of his (the President's) gratitude. Mr. Stewart was appointed Secretary of the Treasury. Many others contributed to the funds for the benefit of Gen. Grant, and if there is one among tributed to the funds for the benefit of Gen. Grant, and if there is one among them, commencing with Jay Cooke and running down through the whole list, whom President Grant had not offered to reward at the public expense, I have yet to see his name in print; and ere the storm of public indignation which has overtaken Barnard, McCunn, Tweed, Murphy. Connor and Bright has spent its force it will sweep from power every vestige of that administration which has turned the temple of our liberties into a house of gain and made merchandise of the gain and made merchandise of the rights and privileges of our people. Talk true daring to doubt the wisdom of Grant's reflection; with assessments daily levied on all Government clerks for the purpose of carrying on the administration camor carrying on the audininstration cam-paign. Cruelties of Dahomey.

The slave trade is becoming more precarious, not only because of the surveilance of the English and French ships of war, but because the development of the oil industry demands a large force of laborers for the harvesting of the nuts and the preparation of the oil. The prisoners are bound, their eibows tied behind their backs by one cord, their wrists fastened by another and their feet tied together.

Around the necks of the women and children is tied a single cord as a mark of slavery. The raid is over, the band rejoins the army of the King and the slave-chasers return to Abomey with their booty, where several of the unfortunates are sacrificed in honor of the cruel god who

The People Worried Over the World'

Fears that the County Will Not Be Able to Make a Proper Showing-Adjournment of the Commissioners

The World's Fair Commissioners of Santa Barbara county have adjourned for two weeks, if no special meeting is called weeks, it no special meeting is called sooner. Since speaking of this matter yesterday, several parties have expressed the fear that the county will fail to make the proper showing for lack of preparation. Judging from reports of work done in other counties, we are already greatly behind in many things. They have selected exhibits that must be collected from this exhibits that must be collected from this year's crop, that are now out of season, and the farmers in those counties have crops growing which were planted and cared for growing which were planted and cared for specially for that purpose. Our commissioners seem to have been worrled more about appropriations, which is all right in itself, but would it not be better to go ahead, attend to the preparation of the exhibit, and trust to the generosity of the people for the means of carrying it to a successful completion. The parties who are expected to furnish the fine specimens of farm and or chard products have made no preparation whatever, and don't know what will to make arrangements for the growing of products especially for the exhibit, as our neighboring counties have done months ago. This is the only way the best can be secured. No such opportunity to advertise our county and its almost unequaled range of products will again occur for many

On the 19th of last December the County Supervisors, consisting of J. N. Victor, I. W. Lord and J. H. Johnson, passed a county ordinance, No. 38, to go into effect January 10, 1892, levying a license of $20 per day for any person not a resident of San Bernardino county who should solicit fire insurance in this county. The ordinance was passed at the instigation of the local insurance agents, to prevent outside agents coming in and with low rates taking the business from them. N. J. Danison, who is not a resident of this county, is here taking fire insurance and has been arrested for violating the ordinance. Yesterday the trial was begun before Justice Marchant, Will A. Harris appearing for the defendant, who will endeavor to prove the ordinance unconstitutional upon the ground that it discriminates in favor of citizens not residents of this county. There is much injected manifested in the case, for if it is proven unconstitutional there are several other county ordinances of the same class that may be overthrown. Mr. Harris is confident of winning the case as he had one of like nature, in which the city imposed a tax upon persons selling by sample in this city, and Judge Gibson held it bunconstitutional. The grand concert by the Redlands Choral Union, for which such preparations were made and about which so much has were made and about which so much has been said in local circles, remains only as a pleasant memory. The Choral Union, assisted by the Rediands Orchestra, gave the concert on Tuesday evening, and it was a success in every particular.

Part one, consisting of four numbers, opened with Rossini's overture "Tancredi' by the Rediands Orchestra. Beethoven's sonata, Op. 27, No. 2 ("Moonlight.") was well played by C. B. Wingate. The last selection of part one, Abt's contraito solo "O'Jugend," was sung by Miss Nillie Fowler; violin obligato by Frank B. Gunther. Miss Fowler added to the laurels already won by her sweet voice.

Part II was the event of the evening, consisting of the beautiful but difficult mass in B flat of Herry Farmer by the Choral Union, conducted by Edward H. Muligan The soloists were Miss Adele L. It is impossible to give a synopsis that would describe the situation. From the opening quartette and chorus, "Hear our prayer, O Lord God," with which it opened, to the closing dust, solo and chorus. "Lord of Life to heaven ascended," with which it closed, there was a continuous series of surprises at the fine work of the union. The singing of the soloists and quartette was especially good. The Academy of Music was packed to the doors, and everyone left pleased with what he heard.

VENTURA COUNTY.

The Shotgun Used As an Argument in a Quarrel-Notes.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, Tuesday evening, quite a serious shooting scrape occurred at Santa Paula. J. B. Saltmarsh did the shooting and Jack Benton the victim. It seems that the trouble started over some chickens belonging to the Benton family annoying the Saltmarsh household, and led to unpleasant words between the women of the families. The row was taken up by the men, and Benton, with a little, child in the men, and Benton, with a little, child In his arms, was talking to the other man over the matter, hard words being used, when the latter went in and procuréd a shotgun with which be took a shot at the man holding the baby. Both Benton and the child were wounded, one shot going into the man's mouth and another shot going through the childs' hand. Neither are considered seriously injured however. Saltmarsh has been arrested. Both parties are prominent.

Improvements and additions are being made to the bath houses and pavillion on the beach, and the work is going rapidly-forward. Quite a party of society youths, after a jolly bath the other day, adorned themselves in sea weed, made a fire on the beach and imitated an Indian war dance much to the amusement of the spectators. As seen from the hotel windows it was very grotesque and fancy.

A HALT WAS CALLED.

For some days past a band of workmen has been engaged grading a road bed for the Terminal road, whereupon it is intended to lay a couple of new tracks north and south of Colorado street and west of Pasadena avenue. The raliroad company had never said very much about the matter to the City Council-indeed they hadn't said anything—but all went well until yesterday, when the pick and the shovel began to be applied to Colorado street. Superintendent of Streets Brown, who seems to be well posted in the duties of his office, had been keeping an eye on the proceedings, and when this stage of the game was reached he thought it was time to act.

While the dawn was yet rosy Mr. Brown approached the laborers and blandly requested that they desist work until the company is given a franchise to cross the street at the point of operations. The workmen desisted. So the matter rested for the rest of the day. At night Marshal Buchanan put a man on guard to prevent any work being carried on surreptitiously. The fact of the matter is that while the company has a franchise permitting it to cross Colorado street where it now does it has not a franchise. neither has it taken the trouble to ask for one to cross in a line with the new road-bod. The matter is at present in an unsettled condition, but a settlement will doubtiess be arrived at without difficulty or delay.

An Indication of the Interest in the Sport
—Vanderbeck's Victory.

An indication of the interest in baseball was offered last evening, when the local newspaper offices were besieged by hungry cranks who were anxious to hear from the game billed for Oakland yesterday afternoon.

The justice of President Vander-beck's demands in the matter of the schedule dispute is reflected in the fact schedule dispute is reflected in the fact that every one of his original demands have been at last complied with by the Northern managers. The papers which have been heaping abuse on the young Los Angeles magnate for this fight will now have an opportunity to show their generosity by eating a dish of crow in their baseball columns. The hatchet has been buried and Uncle Henry Harris will hereafter receive a warm welcome in Los Angeles, even though he has dropped his title of "secretary."

though he has dropped his title of "secretary."
Harris and Vanderbeck have also had a side dispute which was somewhat amusing. In the games played on the Oakland grounds with San Francisco, a dozen balls were knocked over the fence and gobbled up by small boys. In making a settlement for the series Manager Harris retained $9, half the value of the balls lost. Mr. Vanderbeck protested in vain, but evened up by keeping out $9 after the last San Francisco series in Los Angeles. It was supposed that this little game would be kept up allseason, but the League directors took the matter in hand and decided that Manager Harris must furnish balls for the ager Harris must furnish balls for the Emmett Rogers's backstop work is praised by the Call and Examiner, but criticised by the Chronicle. The popular catcher is much disturbed over this criticism and wrote fo a friend in Los Los Angeles yesterday as follows: "I suppose I am catching it on all sides there for what the Chronicle is saying about me. Well, don't you pay any attention to that Chronicle paper. The fellow who writes that has got little rocks in his head. Read the Call and Examiner; those fellows are both smart men."

BROADWAY ASSESSMENTS.

They Became Delinquent Yesterday-In-junction Proceedings Commenced. The assessments for the opening of Broadway, from Tenth to Main streets, became delinquent yesterday, and under the law the Street Superintendeut must advertise the delinquent property for ten days, after which it is to be sold at public auction. There are 102 delinquents on the street, much of the property being very valuable. Late yester-day afternoon, however, J. B. Lankershim and other interested property-owners applied for a writ enjoining the Street Superintendent from taking any further steps toward the opening of the street, and until this is disposed of nothing further can be done.

The assessment for the widening of Seventh street became delinquent on the 6th inst., and injunction proceedings will also probably be commenced in this case, if the Broadway matter is decided ayovable. decided favorably.

An Electric Locomotive.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

A very large locomotive is now being built at the works of Messrs. Brown, Boveri & Co., at Baden, Switzerland. This engine, says a German contemporary, will be fitted with dynamos of a total of 1500 horse-power, but which could be increased up to 2000 horse-power. The power will be transmitted to eight electro-motors, arranged on the same number of axles. It is said that this locomotive will attain a higher speed than is usual with steam locomotives, and trials of its capabilities are to be made at the end of the summer.

The courtroom was crowded with the fegulation gang of sensation gossips who filed in, mouth, eyes and ears wide open, but their desire fog a feast on filthy testimony was cut short by the discharge of the defendant after three witnesses had been examined briefly. briefly.

Police Officer, Johnson told how he followed the couple from 4 o'clock in the afternoon until he made the arrest at 10 o'clock at night. He believed from Hughes' conduct that, something was wrong, and when he made the arrest it was evident that Hughes intended to ruin the girl.

SHOOTING AT SANTA PAULA.

A Man and His Infant Child Shot by a An affray occurred at Santa Paula Tuesday evening, which resulted in the shooting of C. D. Bently and his infant child, by J. B. Saltmarsh. At the examination before the justice's court at that place yesterday the evidence showed that the disagreement grew out of a quarrel between the wives of the parties, over trespasses committed by Mrs. Bently's chickens on her neighbor's premises. Mrs. Bently stated in her evidence that Saltmarsh's son assaulted her with a broom on the aftersaulted her with a broom on the afternoon previous to the shooting, and told would be served the same or worse.

Bently responded to the invitation in the evening, and, as he fourteen-months-old child in his arms.

Saltmarsh ran out and fired a shotgun at him. One shot struck Bently on the lip, two went through his hat, and the baby was wounded in the hand and in the knee.

Saltmarsh, who was represented by Dr. Guiberson, practically reserved his defense, the only witness called on his behalf being Mrs. Saltmarsh, who testified that at the time of the shooting, or immediately before it, Mrs. Bently was chasing her with a hatchet and that Mr. Bently expressed his intention of making Saltmarsh and his son bite the dust. The defendant was committed for trial and held in bail in the sun of $500. The affair has excited much comment. The parties have been neigh-bors for years, and the accused bears the reputation of being a peaceable

Additional Labor in Store for County Officials. The San Francisco Chronicle of Tues-

The San Francisco Chronicle of Tuesday says:

The Supreme Court rendered a decision yesterday morning which is calculated to disturb the even tenor of proceedings in the offices of public officials throughout the State. The judgment in question is one in the cases of Dougherty against Ausrin and Burr against Johnson, and deals solely with the hitherto-freely-exercised right of Boards of Supervisors to appoint extra deputies for the performance of work in the various departments with salaries provided by the Supervisors and not by the officials in whose quarters the deputies are engaged. The decision will deprive Supervisors of any such right and will thus render a deputy-desirous official responsible for the payment of such assistants as he may determine to emply.

The county government act enacted in 1883 provided that county officials might employ deputies with the condition that they should be paid out of the sum allowed the officials for his own salary and the expenses of his office. In 1887, however, the Legislature amended this law and authorized the Supervisors in certain counties to grant officials such assistance as they required. The Supreme Court holds that this amendment is unconstitutional, and that the Legislature is not empowered to bestow legislative functions upon Boards of Supervisors. The matter will thus result in the visors. The matter will thus result in the visors. The matter will thus result in the discharge of all such assistants as were employed in accordance with the provisions of the amendment to the county government act, as their appointments have been declared void by the Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS DAY, OCT. 12.

A Message to the Public Schools of America.

The Day Should Be Signafized in Every Town and Village in the Republic by Local Celebration of Which the Public School Is the Cepter.

To the scholars of the public schools of the United States the executive committee of the Columbian public school celebration sends the following mes

The 12th of October, 1892, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, ought to be observed everywhere in America.

The day will be marked in Chicago by the dedication of the Columbian exposition grounds. The day also may be signalized in every town and village in the republic by a local celebration of which the public school is the center.

The public schools of the republic will form the most fitting centers for all these local celebrations. A national public school observance simultaneous with the Chicago exercises will awaken a popular interest in the coming exposition. Far more important is the fact that the public school has the right to occupy the most prominent place in the celebration. The public school is the one characteristic institution which links all the neighborhoods together, and can thus furnish a common bond for a national celebration. The public school is the ripe fruit of the four centuries of American civilization. The public school of today sways the hundred years to come

How It Came About. The first approval of this suggestion came from the public school scholars themselves. When the plan was first proposed by The Youth's Companion, January, 1891, thousands of letters were received, testifying to the enthusia with which the scholars responded.

The world's congress auxiliary of the Columbian exposition then took up the proposal, calling upon all the people of the republic to observe the day in their own localities, and suggesting that the public schools be everywhere the cen-

The superintendents of education were the next to recognize the fitness of giving to the public schools the first place in this Columbian anniversary. eir national convention in Brook lyn in February, 1892, they took charge of the movement, and appointed the undersigned an executive committee to lead the schools in their commemora

Then show this message to your teachers; every patriotic teacher will be glad to help you if you show yourselves in earnest. Take the message to the school committee and the superintendent-their consent and aid are indispensable.

After you secure the support of all these, then let the school vote that it

The duty of your committee will first be to interest the citizens and to prepare the school. Precessions may be arranged. The veterans, both north and south, will gladly be escorts for the schools. THE SHIPS OF COLUMBIJS.

A Description of the Great Discoverer's Little Squadres.

The approach of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America cannot fail to awaken a reverence for the Genese mariner whose intrepid daring and en-

Columbus was by profession a sailor, and his great maritime knowledge wor for him the command of many ships for him the command of many snips.
During his numerous voyages he formed his purpose of sailing westward to find a nearer way to India. It was at the little Spanish port of Palos that Columbus prepared the expedition for which Ferdinand and Isabella had supplied the stormy passage and live to return.

They were designed and constructed upon a model of the old type of craft known as the caravel, which included in its class all vessels from 50 to 100 tons, with or without decks.

The Santa Maria was no larger than the little schooners engaged in fishing on the Great Banks, or about equal in tonnage to the stanch pilot boats which cruise along our coast in all weathers.
This vessel upon which Columbus sailed was eighty-five feet long, twenty-four feet wide and drew eight feet of water.
Her bottom was made very flat, in order that she might be run upon the shore or sandy beach without undue strain to her timbers. Her extreme width was at the water line where the hull bulges out several feet beyond the upper structure at the deck. This form of "tumbling home," as it is termed in the vernacula of the sailor, is rarely seen in ships of modern design and construction, al though this build can be seen in a modi-fied degree in many of the old frigates now relegated to "ordinary" in our navy yards. Ancient shipbuilders held that bulging out the sides of a vessel pre-vented her rolling in a heavy sea, and accordingly her decks would not be exposed to to the sweep of heavy surges breaking close aboard.

The Santa Maria had but one deck. At the bow was a house called the fore-castle, in which the petty officers slept and also a part of the crew. Across the stern of the ship was a second house called the after castle, above which ran a deck called the poop deck or quarter deck. A small watch tower was erected on the poop deck as the post of duty for the officer of the watch. The admiral of the fleet occupied the after cabin, the officers of high rank being permitted to share it with him, while the rest of the crew was quartered in the hold and in such parts of the ship as were not utilized for stowing provisions and ballast.

The after part of these ships towered many feet above the crest of the wave. and when running before heavy following seas the deckhouses were rarely swept by them, no matter how severe the gale before which the ship was

The Pinta and Nina, sister ships of the squadron, were about seventy feet in length, the Nina, however, being a little smaller in tonnage than the Pinta. These vessels were not decked fore and aft like the Santa Maria, although each with fir and secured by heavy iron bolts, as to withstand the battle of the elements during that long and weary journey over the trackless Atlantic.

On account of these ships being built high at the ends and low amidships, high seas would often be taken upon the decks when sailing with a side wind, and to prevent this high stanchions of posts were inserted in the upper plank of the rails, to which screens of heavy canvas were laced, making a temporary bulwark, which proved to be very effective in keeping out the water. In the case of the two smaller ships heavy mats and large terraculing ware stretched. and large tarpaulins were stretched across the beams to keep the water from running into the holds and swamping them; the vessels of four centuries ago were not supplied with pumps.

The Santa Maria was rigged with four masts—the three foremost ones being fit-

HOW TO CUT ROSE CAMPION

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.] Rose Campion gardens are heavenly. The plants grow only a foot high. The foliage is grassy—a little like the garden pinks, but not so blue a green in

The five petaled flowers, somewhat larger each than a single blossom of phlox, are borne well up above the leaves on long, fine, strong stems, and their grace, their delicacy, their supreme elegance of shape no words of mine can express. They are pure white, they are rose pink, they are clear, heavenly blue, and some are bright scarlet, some crimson, some lavender, some have dark, rich centers, some are white within and pink without, some of the lavender flowers have a ring of rich red in the center, and they are all

The state of the weather, the temperature of the air, the amount of rain which falls, make all the difference in the world in the all the difference in the world in the time it takes for the first green leaves to appear. Sometimes if the weather is cold it is a fortnight before you see the faint green lines along the planted rows.

When they do appear, you must watch well for the weeds between their ranks, and so must all the gardeners in the other gardens.

There will be clover; that comes up with a little circular leaf and has a root that seems to reach all round in the under world, it goes everywhere and holds on to the earth with a grip which is unequalled by anything that grows. Don't leave an atom of the root in the ground, for if you do it will send upshoots, and if not watched fill all the space in a few weeks.

Then there is a chick-weed, a delicate weed most difficult to manage, because when you attempt to pull it up the tender stalk is likely to break just where der stalk is likely to break just where it leaves the ground, and all the root will send up fresh shoots to strangle your flowers if you leave it unmolested. Ther there are the pigweeds, rag; weed, shepherd's purse, mallow, mustard and many others; these come first. The second cron consists largely of

The second crop consists largely of quitch grass, the very worst of all, and purseley, of which Charles Dudley Warner discourses so amusingly in his "My Summer in a Carden." He has really made the purseley famous. The roots of the quitch grass are strong as steel and run rapidly everywhere beneath the surface, sending up tender shoots that break off when you touch them. Get hold of the root and follow it dp and pull out every fiber. Purseley has a flat, olive green leaf and red, fleshy stems, and runs over the top of the ground in a mat But this is easily disposed of. Only it keeps coming from time to time all summer. and in a few days the whole bed will be a waving mass of delicate bloom, so graceful, so exquisite that you will be enchanted with it.

The same rule holds good with this as with other flowers, "Gather! gather!" if you want an endless succession of bloom. Don't let your flowers exhaust their strength in forming seeds. Cut them (and by the way, every gardener must have a common, cheap pair of scissors for cutting flowers; to break the stems or pull them is a most disastrous and cruel fashion) every day; follow the stalk down as far as you can find it and cut it as loug as possible; a few buds and leaves will go with it, but there is such a wealth of slowers you can spare the buds.

Miss Von Stosch is quite a prodigy in her line. She is the daughter of Mrs. Julia Schayer, whose pretty stories, "A Tiger Lily," etc., have successfully introduced her to the world of letters. Mrs. Schayer's first husband was a German nobleman, cultured and musical. In his daughter's veins runs the same musical blood. She was abroad for four years, taking first prizes in all her musical studies. She returned to America last autumn, and very shortly afterward was engaged by Mr. Nickish as soloist in the Boston Symphony concerts. Nothing further is needed to show her ability. She was presented with a long coveted Stradivarius, the cost of which ($5000) was greatly beyond her purse's reach. An old gentleman—a stranger—having heard her play, and knowing of her longing; purchased the sweetest-toned vlolin I ever heard, and presented it to the talented girl. It is always worth the price of admission to hear her play on it.

HARRISON IS FOR WAR.

Threats That He will Fight to the Bitter End.

No Compromise With Blaine by Withdrawal from the Race.

The Secretary Not Anxious to Leave the Field Clear.

ormation and Charges from a Highest Official Source—Blaine Accused of Incompetency and False Pretenses.

[Telegram to the Chicago Herald.] GTON, May 24.-It is war to the knife between Blaine and Harrison. that peace is impossible, and he has that peace is impossible, and he has come out openly on the side of Blaine. Nearly all the strong politicians of the party are with him. Last night Mr. Clarkson haw Senator Alltson and Senator Quay. Both are for Blaine, and the latter left this morning for Pennsylvania to attend to some matters there. Today Mr. Clarkson had a long conference with Secretary Elkins and became ence with Secretary Elrins and became satisfied that Harrison will stand his ground against Blaine and all comers. Tomorrow Clarkson will see the President, but he is not likely to suggest withdrawal from the fight. Clarkson knows Harrison too well to bring up such a subject in the President's present frame of mind. It is semi-officially announced that Clarkson will retire from the chairmanship of the National from the chairmanship of the National Committee, no matter who may be the nominee at Minneapolis. His health will not permit him to retain the arduous post of campaign manager.

The war between Harrison and Blaine becoming bitter. From now till the nomination is made it will be a fight all along the line. The President's most intimate advisers are circulating a story of charges against Blaine and an assortment of stories concerning his physical condition. Their principal charge is treachery. According to the Harrison story, as maintained today to Mr. Clarkson by several members of the Cabinet, having declared himself not a candidate Blaine cannot now come into the fight or permit his name to be used without dishonor. It is on this point of honor that Elkins has been making his appeals to Blaine, but the point of honor that Elkins has been making his appeals to Blaine, but the fact that these appeals have gone unanswered shows that Mr. Blaine feels able to take care of his honor without placing it in the hands of Harrison and Elkins for safe keeping. In this connection a bit of secret history of the national convention of 1888 came to light two or three days ago. light two or three days ago. A Sena-tor who is for the nomination of Blaine called on Elkins and listened to the Secretary of War making his argument called on Elkins and listened to the Secretary of War making his argument that Blaine could not permit his name to be used without violating his honor. At the same time, in his smooth and oily way, Elkins claimed there was no bad feeling between the President and the Secretary of State.

"Why," said he, "it was Mr. Blaine who chose Harrison for the nominee of the party in 1888. When I went to the Chicago convention of that year I had in my pocket a letter from Mr. Blaine in which he said he would not take the nomination and in which he said Gen. Harrison was the man who ought to be nominated. This was my authority for doing what I did to secure Harrison's selection. It is idle to talk of there being any serious difficulty between the two men, after they had had such a relationship as this."

"According to your own story," spoke up the Senator. "Harrison's Blaine's and the said her they had had such a relationship as this."

"According to your own story," spoke up the Senator, "Harrison is Blaine's creature. It was Blaine who picked him up and made him President. Harrison took Blaine into his Cabinet because he dared not leave him out. Now, do you say that simply because Blaine cause he dared not leave him out. Now, do you say that simply because Blaine is a member of Harrison's staff he, canis a member of Harrison's staff he, cannot permit his name to go before the convention without being guilty of disloyalty and treachery? Why, on your own showing, it is Harrison who owes loyalty to Blaine, not Blaine to Harrison?" The conversation son." The conversation quoted above gives a cue to the arguments of the rival

CHARGE BLAINE WITH FAILURE.

In addition to the charge that Blaine is treacherous to Harrison the friends of the Pres ident say Blaine has been a failure in the administration. They say he has been traveling all the time under faise pretenses, and that if he presists in standing as a candidate they will expose him to the bountry. In connection with this charge a member of the admitted the same of the administration of the same of th with this charge a member of the administration of high official standing said today to the correspondent of the Herald: "Blaine has been a failure in this administration. I tell you the solemn truth, incredible though it may seem, when I say that Mr. Blaine has done nothing whatever in this adminisdone nothing whatever in this administration except to prepare a nebulous scheme of reciprocity which would not work till the President took hold of it work till the President took hold of it and devised a plan which brought on success, and to take the initial and most unfortunate steps in the Bering Sea negotiations. This is absolutely all that Blaine has done. Because Congress did not take kindly to his impractical plan for reciprocity he lost his temper and denounced the McKinley bill, his denunciation being the greatest obstacle which we had to contend against in the campaign of 1890. The steps which he took in regard to the Bering Sea arbitration were the very steps which most embarrassed the President when he finally took hold and settled the matter up. Blaine has settled the matter up. Blaine has charged that the President deserted the original ground in that contention as set by Blaine himself; but this is not true. The President adhered to Blaine's negition, but in order to make a case was compelled to strengthen it with arguments which Blaine had never thought of. Yet Blaine has posed as the man entitled to all the credit for a thought of. Yet Blaine has posed as the man entitled to all the credit for a successful termination of the arbitration negotiations.

"As to the Chilean case," continued this official, "Mr. Blaine's record in that matter, if fully exposed, would forever damn him in the eyes of the American people. He was not only indifferent to the interest of the country in that matter but false to his chief. Blaine was jealous because Harrison took part in the case and set the pace before Mr. Blaine came back from Bar Harbor, and he was determined that the negotiations should not end as the President wanted them to end. This is not all that could be said in that case. If Mr. Blaine be nominated for the Presidency there are matters in connection with W. R. Grace and South American investments, which will be sure to figure unpleasantly in the campaign.

"Still more surprising," this confidential friend of the President went on, "is the part Mr. Blaine took in the Italian incident. The country was led to by President Harrison, and while Blaine has been posing as the greatest diplomat of modern times on the strength of his alleged management of the Italian incident, not only the spirit, but the details and the correspondence of that case were the work of the President, who has been compelled to ait still and see the credit awarded to a man who had but a bare trifle more to do with it than you had. These are the facts," the official concluded. "Mr. Blaine has done less work in this administration than any other member of the Cabinet. He is the only member of the Cabinet. He is the only member of the Cabinet who has not been able to run his own department. He has been Secretary of State only in name, through mental and physical incompetency, for nearly three-years. During the last winter he has done nothing more in the Department than to sign his name to a part of the letters prepared by his subordinates, and he has not even had enough strength to read the letters. He knows little or nothing of what is going on in his State Department. President Harrison has been his own Secretary of State and Blaine is taking all the credit for what Harrison has done. To this day Blaine is not able to give more than an hour's attension to business without showing signs of collapse. He is utterly incompetent to be President or a candidate for President."

WAS IT VIGE-PRESIDENT MORTON!

The foregoing utterances, from the mouth of a man of national reputation, for President."

WAS IT VICE-PRESIDENT MORTON!

The foregoing utterances, from the mouth of a man of national reputation, and the highest official station next to the Presidency itself, may be taken as a fair sample of the attacks which the Harrison men are making on the Blaine government, now that war has been declared. This sort of attack, with added bitterness as the days go by, will be kept up until the convention shall have made its nomination.

The hint contained in the foregoing statement of Blaine's connection with W. R. Grace in the Chilean business is believed to foreshadow something sensational. It is thought the Harrison managers have some letters or documents showing Blaine's duplicity or his financial interest in the house of W. R. Grace & Co., which they expect to bring out before the convention meets, in case Blaine persists in his determination to be a candidate. It is evident that this game of raiding in hopes of crowding the rival off the track is one which both sides can play at, and the administration men are equipped with some ugly weapons.

Senator Sawyer and ex-Senator

some ugly weapons.

Senator Sawyer and ex-Senator Spooner are depended upon to keep Wisconsin in line, but a bait is to be thrown out to them in the shape of Rusk for second place. Platt and Clarkson have about abandoned their plan to put Alger on the tail of the Clarkson have about abandoned their plan to put Alger on the tail of the ticket. That would be too filmsy a a game, would savor too much of trading in a dying man's shoes. To put Alger on with Blaine would disgust the country with the cold-blooded brutality of the thing. There are reasons for believing that Senator Allison is likely to be brought to the front for Vice-President. He is, at any rate, the Clarkson candidate for President in case Blaine should get the stomachache or a fit of indigestion in the next two weeks and conclude to withdraw. Senator Cullom is depended upon by ache or a nto 1 indigestion in the next two weeks and conclude to withdraw. Senator Cullom is depended upon by the administration managers' to hold Illinois in line, but the most discouraging reports as to Illinois reach the ears of Harrison's lieutenants; there is even doubt of Cullom's sincerity. Fully one half of the Illinois delegation is expected to go over to Blaine. Clarkson and Quay are said to have agreed, on careful examination of the list of delegates and on comparing reports from the various States, that from 650 to 700 votes can be thrown to Blaine on the first ballot. The administration managers are laying much stress on the declaration which Blaine is said to have made that he would not take the nomination unless he could get it it by acclamation. The Harrison men say there will be no nomination by acclamation, and if Blaine wins at all he will have to pull through with a bare clamation, and if Blaine wins at all he will have to pull through with a bare majority. This must be pretty cold comfort to the President, inasmuch as Mr. Blaine is not on record as saying anything of the sort, and will be very well satisfied with the nomination, no matter how he gets it. Unless the unexpected happens or something goes wrong with Mr. Blaine's digestion or nervous system in the next two weeks, Walker Blaine and Col. Coppinger will have been avenged. have been avenged.

BLAINE AND HARRISON. A Chicago Democratic Journal's Partisar Venom.

Venom. [Chicago Herald, May 25.]

Chicago Herald, May 25.]

The Blaine enthusiants have declared all along that there would be no contest between their favorite and the President for the Republican nomination. They have proclaimed that, so soon as it should become apparent that Blaine is the real and practically the unanimous choice of the party as a Presidential candidate. Harrison would gracetial candidate. Harrison would grace-fully withdraw his claims and permit the "plumed knight" to be nominated by acclamation.

Information which may be relied on comes from Washington that President

Harrison does not propose to get out of the way of Blaine or any other candi-date; that he wants a renomination and that he is ready and willing to fight for it. This shows that the frantic howlers it. This shows that the france now ead did not know what they were talking about when they pretended that the President would consent to sacrifice himself in the interest of the Blaine movement; that they were simply draw-ing on their imaginations and indulging, as usual, in fraud and falsehood.

If the delirious Republican man-wor-

If the delirious Republican man-worshipers were capable of exercising reason, a very little reflection would suffice to convince them that Harrison is not a man to be frightened by a tempest of wind and froth. He has excellent discretion and good judgment, and he is familiar with the bark of the pack that is in pursuit of him. He is not dismayed by the threats of the sandbaggers, nor the clamor of the rag-tag-and-bob-tail-brigade which finds its only here in the "smart cuss," Blaine.

It would be impossible for the President to surrender to the demands of the mob which is now assailing him, and, at mob which is now assailing him, and, at the same time preserve his self-respect. His position is a peculiar one. He made no officious canvass for a renomination, but he was left without visible opposition until every Republican State convention had been held. He had the right to presume from Mr. Blaine's letter, written last winter, that Mr. Blaine, at least, would not at any time appear as a candidate against him.

Under these circumstances the President feels no doubt, that he owes a

Under these circumstances the President feels, no doubt, that he owes a duty to his own friends. He would not be treating them fairly if he should abandon his "candidacy at a menace from the Blaine specter." He proves himself to be a man by refusing to cower in the presence of the angry crowd which is seeking his political life. He cannot be intimidated, and he is getting ready for the conflict which he now sees to be inevitable at Minneapolis.

"still more surprising." this confidential friend of the President went on, "is the part Mr. Blaine took in the Italian incident. The country was led to believe that Mr. Blaine conducted that correspondence. For the brilliancy of his reply to the Marquis Rudini his praises were sounded from one end of the country to the other. Yet the fact is that all of these letters were written it will be just like Blaine to weaken. He can wriggle out of the hole in which he finds himself by writing another let-ter to Clarkson.

Meantime the Democrats have cause

Meantime the Democrats have cause for great rejoicing in the prospect of a fierce contention at Minneapolis. They do not care how hot the fighting may become, how keen the weapons are, nor how much bad blood may be shown. The indications are most promising for a row which will come very close to disrupting the party. Blaine approaches so nearly the ideal of the blatant, the corrupt, the vicious and the degraded elements of Republicanism that be cannot appear as a factor in any of its conventions without leaving behind him gaping wounds. gaping wounds.

The Man for the Hour—Another cratic Estimate.

The Man for the Hour-Another Democratic Estimate.

[San Francisco Examiner.]

The movement against the renomination of President Harrison means more than the desire of a band of politicians, disappointed in their expectations of honors and patronage, to secure revenge. No doubt not a few of those prominent in the movement are men inspired by this desire, but they appeal to a feeling in their followers watch is far deeper and more worthy than resentment. It really matters little what the motive is of the Clarksons and Quays and Platts. They would be powerless did there not exist a powerful sentiment which, to serve their personal ends, they can address. This sentiment finds expression in the enormous popularity of Blaine. Part of this popularity is due to the man's personal qualities, but more to the memories he awakens and, the promises for which he is believed to stand. Blaine comes down from the larger, greater days of Republicanism. He lived through the war and was one of the leaders of his party wner it refied for success on the people's unselfmenss, their moral perceptions and self-sacrificing paritotism. He has come down to this later day of small things like a giant surviving, and, like, giant surviving, he is unsuited to the Republican environment. He feels this and refuses the Presidential nomination because he is a clear-headed politician and knows that, despite his popularity, he is not really as strong with the controlling, organizing forces of his party as Harrison is.
Those forces prefer a mediocre man, which Blaine is not. He has imagination and aggressive percery. Those forces prefer a mediocre man, which Blaine is not. He has imagination and aggressive energy of character and would carry his dominating qualities into the White House. There

It is a poor, mean hour for the Republican party—the party of Lincoln, it is a poor, mean hour for ace appulsion party—the party of Lincoln, Grant, Conkling and Blaine—not an hour for the advancement of the republic of Washington, Jefferson and Madison, but for the advancement of Carnegie & Co., Smith, Jones, Rabinson & Co., the steel trust, the iron trust, the wine trust the coal trust and aggreand aggregated money in general.

And Mr. Harrison is the man for the hour.

he would be a leader and not an instrument. The governing forces of the party might not be able to control him.

PROGRESS IN CHINA.

The Wheels Move Slowly in the Dragon's Empire.

His Majesty the Emperor of China and the "Son of Heaven" is enjoying a train of ministure railroad cars, presented to him by the French syndicate of capitalists who wish to get contracts for building railways.

In China, they will wonder at its steam engine; and the six thousand electric lights, which are now being introduced into the holiest of Chinese sanctuaries, cannot the trum their eyes to our civilization. It will not be long ere a material advancement will be made in the science of medicine, which has for so many centuries remained a blot upon their civilization.

The missionaries are doing much to dispelten mysticism and reverent awe which the Chinaman holds for the concoctions of snakes, toads, lizards, etc., prepared by the native doctors. They recommend standard remedies which have long been favorably known in America and Europe, such-us Dr. Pierce's Golden Medicai Discovery, a genedy for all cases of blood-taints or humors, which has had years of uninterrupted success in the United States, and numbers its cures by the tens of thousands. This is a point gained for the future welfare of the Drogomen Empire.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES, LOS ANGELES, June 1, 1802 Stocks of dried fruit are now pretty well cleaned up, both in this city, San Francisco and the East. There is still some little inquiry from Kansas City and other points in the East, but practically last season's crop has been disposed of. It has been an off year both for the grower and merchant. Few have made money on the product, and some have lost. The conditions which produced this state of affairs are well understood. Two years ago there was a short. stood. Two years ago there was a short crop in the East, followed by an extraordicrop is the kast, followed by an extraordinary demand for California dried fruit.

Immense shipments were made, and prices went up to remarkable figures. Apricots brought 18 and even 20 cents, and in this city dealers paid as high as 16½ cents for city dealers paid as high as 10% cents for peaches. Easiern merchants became overstocked at excessive prices. Some fruit spoiled on their hands, and a large amount had to be carried over in cold storage, an expensive proceeding. Then came a phenomenal fruit crop all over the East and a large one in this State. The result has been that during the past season the market for California dried fruits has been completely demoralized. It has been hard to get rid of the product at any figure. For the coming season, however, the outlook is encouraging. It is not probable that such prices as were obtained two years ago will prevail again, but there is every reason to anticipate a liberal demand at remunerative figures. This season's fruit crop, according to all advices thus far received, will prove light in most sections of the East, and in many districts it will be almost a total failure. In California indications all-point to a fair crop in most fruit-growing sections and a very large one in others, and it seems safe to predict now that those who dry their product will make a fair profit.

A dispatch from New York says: "Four veers ago 1.000 000 pounds of California." peaches. Eastern merchants became over

A dispatch from New York says: "Four vears ago 1,000,000 pounds of California fruit was the annual amount received in New York. Last year 7,000,000 pounds found purchasers here, and this year a fruit auctioneer who has just returned from a four months' stay on the Pacific Coast says that the amount of fruit sent to New York to be sold will be 20,000,000 pounds. From this time on fruits from the Pacific Coast will be shipped east in less time than was dreamed of a few years ago. It is safe to say that in three years the production of prunes, and radishs in California will be enough to supply America—and preclude importations altogether. Last year fourteen days was the average time in transit from California, and reducing the time to seven days makes the probability of landing fruit here in perfect condition unquestioned. In this event $5,000,000 can be saved to growers yearly over what has been realized in the past. England has been made an outlet possibly for green fruit already by putting fruit on board fast steamers—an experiment that has been recently fried with considerable success."
